Humility and Poverty lead to

Once upon a time there was a King's Son, who went out into the fields sad and thoughtful. He looked up at the aky, which was so beautifully blue and clear, and said with a sigh, "Ah! how happy must they be who are in heaven."
At the same moment he preceived a grey old Man, who was walking the same way, and he asked him the question how he could go to beaven-"Through humility and poverty," answered the old Man. "Put on my old clothes, and wander about the world for seven years to learn what misery is: take no money with yon, but when you are hungry, beg a pice of bread of charit-able people, and thus you will approach gradually the gate of beaven."
